BETA ON WIKIA

---

A new Discussions feature in the hands of users!

wikia 2016
COMMUNITY
CONNECT

What's a beta?

Early version of the product or feature. Not considered “done”, but can start initial rollout for data gathering and early feedback.

Discussions Beta Plan

- Release initial feature set to limited communities in apps first
- Release the same feature set to web-side of communities
- Gather feedback
- Gather data and analyze engagement

Defining Success

- Reach 6+ communities with minimum critical mass
- Reach 180k posts and replies per month (excludes deleted content)

If successful...

- Continue to build features and scale to additional communities in parallel!

Discussions on Wikia Today

across platforms and devices:
mobile apps, desktop web, and mobile web

Moving beyond the beta

Checking in on the beta success metrics

- 12 communities with minimum critical mass in discussion posts and unique contributors
- 352k posts and replies per month

Opinion and knowledge go together

Combining great article content and Discussions is already proving to be successful.

Mobile has been our test bed.

A rising tide lifts all boats

Community App Home Screen Test:

We tested 4 versions of the home screen—differentiated by order of content sections.

Placing Discussions at the top not only resulted in more posts, it resulted in more article views (+14%).

Anticipation and fan interaction

Marvel Database: Wiki and Discussions activity, leading up to Captain America: Civil War release

Anticipation and fan interaction

Pokemon Wiki: Wiki and Discussions activity, leading up to Pokemon Go releases

Making deep connections

Users are finding meaningful ways to connect:

- Creating friend lists in app Discussions profile
- Creatively organizing their own contests
- Game player matchmaking
- and much more!

Discussions are “sticky”

---

Simply put, Discussions keep users around. So far, in Discussions-enabled communities:

- Users who view Discussions are 2x more likely to come back one month later
- Users who create a post or reply are 4x more likely to come back one month later

Building a bigger community

A community can build wonderful things and flourish, even when learning how to adjust to new methods of participation and new types of users.

Admin: Agent c

Walking into discussions I was very mindful of the fact that I had no 'mandate' to bring 'justice to the wasteland' and nobody had agreed to play with 'my rules'. Although some users talked of my sudden appearance as 'the old gods returning', I felt it was important to respect that this is 'their place' and they need to feel informed and involved in the process.

Rather than simply be an 'invading army' we also had local buy in for the decisions.

'Policing by consent' is one of the principles of the main wiki

These new moderators could only be appointed following the community voting in support of them.

Building a bigger community

Admin: Agent c

For communities looking to bridge the gap, my advice would be to go into discussions and respect the community that has been built there without you, and then look at building the links between you.

Don't impose your rules, but get the discussions community's consent to use them; make sure the local community has ownership.

Make sure you're cross posting your news and announcements so discussions-only users know they're there, and encourage them to participate.

The Walking Dead

Fans find a way

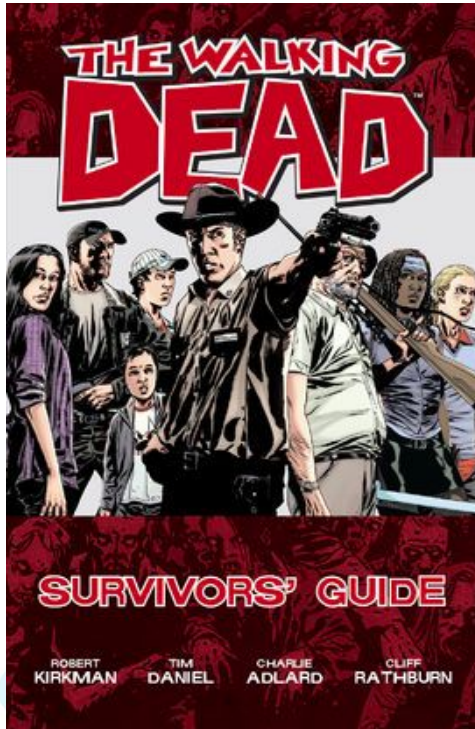

A community will self-regulate and form rules and a leadership structure, even without a formal method of doing so.

In the Walking Dead Community App, Discussions users built their own community in a brave new world.

The Walking Dead

Fans find a way

Lacking external guidance, and without any pre-existing rules they were aware of, the Discussions users set up policies for themselves.

And more...

Must kill negan

Shocked at what Negan did

I am the sole creator of Must Kill Negan's Trivia Torture! Want to play? Just ask me and you can!

Yes, I really hate Negan. I'm starting an army! I won the wiki award "Biggest Army Assembled" on June 3 2016!

Join it! .

HEATH IS AWESOME

The Co-Leader of my army is now officially Black Panther. He's awesome.

The Lieutenants of my army are currently Lennard, and Deadpool. If you want to be a lieutenant you must earn it!
